

Terence takes over at Systech Visualisation

Systech International is pleased to announce that Terence Grippon has been promoted to the role of Director, Visualisation Services.

Terence takes over from Leigh Gibbs, who will continue to support Terence on a part time basis in promoting visualisation services to our clients.

Terence joined us in 2012 and he has played a key role as our Head of Creative Services, leading a team of experienced specialists from our office in Edinburgh, to develop visual and interactive tools to support contractors on claims/disputes and large scale construction bids. Visualisation has become one of our core services and, by working with our contracts, claims, dispute resolution and forensic planners, Terence and his team are able to offer our clients an innovation solution to communicate key messages to the decision makers.

Companies using our visualisations include BAM, Balfour Beatty, Bouygues, MHI, Morgan Sindall and Vinci.

Mark Woodward-Smith, Group Managing Director for UK and Europe, says:
"I would like to thank Leigh for his hard work in establishing visualisation as a service within the business. Terence has been a key member in Leigh's team and we are delighted to give him this opportunity to step into the lead role. Good communication, whether it be for a claim or a bid, is crucial and many of our global clients now see visualisation as the way forward and a key component in their negotiation strategy. Stephen Rayment and I look forward to working with Terence to further develop this service worldwide".
